THE 14 - 19 REFORM CONFERENCE SERIES 2009

SECOND ANNUAL CONFERENCE

14-19 Diplomas

LESSONS FROM PHASE 1 – LEARNING FOR PHASE 2

Foreword

Dear Delegate,

I would like to welcome you to the 2nd Annual 14-19 Diplomas Conference.

The focus of today's discussion will be on the success of Diplomas and what can be learned from the experience of the first 12,000 students, their teachers and those involved with local delivery.

Today's conference brings together a wide range of senior representatives from across the learning and skills sector to review the success of the Diplomas and look at lessons that can be learned for the implementation of the next phases. Along with exploring the key challenges beyond 2009 the discussion will look at employer understanding of the qualification and set out ways to ensure all those involved with the Diploma are receiving the correct information, advice and guidance. It will be interesting to hear best practice examples of how schools and colleges have worked with the Diplomas along with what universities will need from those students applying to higher education courses.

I am delighted to welcome a high calibre line-up of speakers today including:

- John Dunford, General Secretary, Association of School and College Leaders
- Jenny Deeks, National Director for School Services, School-Home Support
- Teresa Bergin, Director, Diploma Programme, Qualifications and Curriculum Authority
- Dr David Collier, Lead 14-19 Advisor, Nord Anglia Education Ltd
- Martin Stevens, Managing Director, A1 Technologies and Chair, Made in London

I hope you enjoy the conference. I am looking forward to hearing the discussion.

Teresa Bergin
Director, Diploma Programme
Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA)

Since the publication of the White Paper in 2005, Teresa has led the development of the new Diplomas within QCA, working with all key partners. The Diploma programme within QCA covers policy, assessment and qualification development including principal learning, project and additional and specialist learning. The programme delivers support for exams officers in schools and colleges, the system to support the awarding of the Diploma (Diploma aggregation service), and a range of guidance and support materials for schools and colleges.

Teresa works closely with the 17 Diploma Development Partnerships, Ofqual, UKCES, DCSF and awarding bodies.

Before coming to QCA Teresa worked for a national awarding body. Prior to that, she worked in Merseyside within the further and community education sectors developing the curriculum offer.

Dr Dave Collier
Lead 14-19 Adviser
Nord Anglia Education Ltd

Dave Collier, a Lead Adviser with Nord Anglia, has extensive experience of government policy formulation. He worked for several years in the former DfES as an 'expert adviser' and made contributions to policy development and the writing of White Papers. He has advised internal committees on a range of policy issues including employer engagement, NEETS, 14-19 entitlement and skills development. Dave worked with senior civil servants in helping to formulate new thinking and delivery strategies. He participated in policy and strategy seminars and worked on strategic options in taking new policy forward. Dave drew on his wide experience of working in the education sector and as a former full time inspector to inform policy. He undertook research visits in the field to ensure policy options were informed by current practice.

Jenny Deeks
National Director for School Services
School-Home Support

Jenny began her career in this field through becoming a local parent representative on a regeneration project on her council estate in East London, when her twins were small. With a combination of both statutory and voluntary sector work experience, she is now National Director for School-Home Support Service, a third sector organisation which seeks to build links between school and home, working with children, young people and their parents/carers to remove barriers to educational achievement. Prior to this Jenny was Executive Director – Children, Families & Young People, for ContinYou. Previous roles include: Head of Sure Start – London Borough of Newham, with strategic responsibility for development and delivery of eight sure start local programmes; Parent Education Manager – Community Education, LB Waltham Forest; Access Worker – Enfield Parents Centre; Development Worker and Facilitator – East London Parent-Link; Acting Manager/Key Worker – Drugs Unit, Holloway Prison.

John Dunford

Association of School and College Leaders (ASCL)

John was a member of the leadership team of three comprehensive schools in the north-east of England from 1974 to 1998, including 16 years as head of Durham Johnston Comprehensive School. He has been general secretary of ASCL (formerly the Secondary Heads Association) since 1998.

He is a member of the Boards of Trustees of the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust, Teach First, Future Leaders and Worldwide Volunteering. He is a governor of his local primary school in Leicestershire.

Sue Dunn
Head of 14-24 Innovation Unit
Kent County Council

Sue Dunn started her career in education in teaching and became involved in the development of vocational courses and applied learning in the early 80's particularly for post 16 learners. She then moved on to the role of an advisory teacher/lecturer based at Christ Church College University. For more than six years she was an attached advisor/inspector to schools in the Medway Towns before moving into a role as Local Education Officer. Her major projects have included managing the disaggregate of Kent & Medway education service for the Local Government review, managing for Kent the Special School review, and Area Education Officer for Dartford & Gravesham. She gained an MSc in Strategic Leadership in 2005 and has had a number of articles published on learning, skills and regeneration. Currently she is Joint Head of the 14-24 Innovation Unit for Kent County Council. The Unit is responsible for developing the 14-24 reforms to meet Kent's agenda. This work includes developing innovative approaches to curriculum design; Information, Advice & Guidance and work related learning and skills development.

Margaret Farragher
Strategic Manager of the Diploma Delivery and Curriculum Guidance Team, Qualifications and Curriculum Authority
Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA)

Margaret Farragher is the Strategic Manager of the Diploma Delivery and Curriculum Guidance Team at the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority. The team delivers teaching and learning guidance to support the policy objectives of the Diploma. She has previously worked for on GCSEs, A Levels and other 14-19 qualifications focusing on equalities issues. Margaret's background is in education development. She joined the School Curriculum and Assessment Authority in 1996, working with the ICT National Curriculum Team, and then went to work on GNVQs and national curriculum tests. Margaret also worked for Southwark Local Authority and has served as a school governor in secondary schools in Southwark and Hackney.

Eileen Gordon
14-19 Strategy Manager
Hertfordshire County Council

Eileen Gordon is the 14-19 Strategy Manager for Hertfordshire County Council. She leads the county's strategy and developments on 14-19 reform, working closely with partner organisations such as Youth Connexions and Education Business Links, schools, work based learning providers and colleges and drives collaboration on behalf of the county. She is also involved in LSC transition and works internally with county colleagues on BSF etc.

She joined Hertfordshire in September 2006 before which she was Chief Executive of the Learning Warehouse, a vocational centre in Bedfordshire which was also a 14-19 Pathfinder. Eileen has been in secondary education for over 30 years and has held a variety of senior roles such as head of sixth, deputy headteacher and acting headteacher. She has worked as a consultant for LSN and has contributed to developments in many educational areas including CPD and Modern languages.

Geoff Hallett
Regional Director, South West
National Education Business Partnership (NEBPN)

Geoff Hallett has a background in journalism and education and has managed Devon Education's Business Partnership since 2000. He is Regional Director, South West, for the National Education Business Partnership Network and sits on the Board of that organisation. He works extensively with schools, companies and statutory bodies to bring together thinking and develop action on issues of education, economic development and enterprise. In addition to work with the Devon and Torbay 14-19 Partnerships, Geoff is also a member of the NEBPN Consultancy Team that works with Diploma Consortia across the country.

Dr Henriette Harnisch
Director of Curriculum Innovation and Development, Education Partnerships
University of Wolverhampton

Henriette was born in Berlin and moved to England in 1990. Since settling in the UK she has been working in the field of languages in a variety of contexts. From interpreting at international conferences to exploring how to best teach 3 year olds how to learn another language, she has written about language learning, helped to develop computer games for language learning, and helped business to be more successful in the international markets by learning how to communicate in other languages.

Before joining the Black Country 14-19 Pathfinder Networks for Excellence, Henriette was Head of Languages at the Brasshouse Language Centre in Birmingham. During her association with CiLT, the National Centre for Languages, she has been acting as Further Education Language Teacher Advisor for that sector as well as developing specific teacher training programmes. She has published a number of articles, papers and books in the field of language teaching and learning. Her particular professional interests are around collaborative curriculum development and delivery, teacher training and technology in the field of languages.

Henriette is now Director of the Midlands Curriculum Centre for Languages, Language Networks for Excellence, at the University of Wolverhampton. This Curriculum Centre operates locally, regionally, nationally and internationally and is continuing to expand its successful activities.

As Director for Curriculum Innovation and Development she also leads the implementation of institution wide frameworks and processes for effective curriculum based partnership and collaborative activity with external partners. This work leads her to build successful partnerships, based on partners' express curriculum and related needs, in the Midlands and beyond.

Henriette's expertise is widely sought and she is a popular keynote speaker at curriculum related conferences. She also provides consultancy services on curriculum and related issues to partners, such as schools, Local Authorities and Academies.

Jill Lanning
Operations Director
Learning and Skills Network (LSN)

Jill Lanning joined LSN as Operations Director in 2006 and has overall responsibility for the delivery of development and support programmes ranging from the Functional Skills Support Programme to the Qualification Reform Support Programme, from the Triple Science Support Programme to our contribution to the Diploma Support Programme. These programmes support workforce development across FE and schools including work based learning providers, school sixth forms, offender learning and adult and community learning. She also has responsibility for the growing LSN offer of products, training and consultancy direct to providers.

Jill has worked in the learning and skills sector since 1982 and in her career she worked in an inner city FE college in Birmingham for 10 years and operated as a free lance consultant and trainer with colleges, schools and EBPs for nearly three years before joining BTEC in 1996 to manage the newly established regional teams working with colleges. Jill saw the merger of BTEC with London Examinations to form Edexcel and held a number of different management roles while there including managing the schools and FE regional teams, leading the establishment of a policy and planning function and latterly being responsible for the strategic management of the portfolio of all Edexcel qualifications, academic, occupational and vocationally related.

Kay Leach
14-19 Senior Adviser
Hertfordshire County Council

Kay has worked in Secondary School Education for 16 years.

In 2007, she took up the position of 14-19 Adviser for Hertfordshire County Council and is now Senior Adviser within the 14-19 team. Kay works closely with Strategic Area Partnership Group (SAPG) Coordinators, Diploma practitioners and Heads of Post 16 to encourage delivery of the 14-19 strategy and other areas of collaborative working.

Nicki Moore
Careers Education and Guidance Manager, Connexions Derbyshire
Chair, Careers Education Committee, Institute of Career Guidance

Nicki qualified as Careers Adviser in 1996. During her ten years with Derbyshire Careers and then Connexions service, Nicki has worked with a range of disadvantaged groups including young people with learning difficulties and disabilities, the traveller community, and those from minority ethnic backgrounds.

In her current role as CEG manager, held since 2004, Nicki provides CEG curriculum development support to learning organisations in Derbyshire. She is a development manager for Career Mark, the East Midlands Consortium's quality award for CEG. In addition to delivering CEG training for Connexions Derbyshire she teaches on the Diploma in Career Education for Nottingham Trent University. In June 2006 Nicki was elected chair of the ICG's new Career Education Committee.

She is a visiting Associate at the International Centre for Guidance Studies at Derby University.

Patrick Nash
Chief Executive
Teacher Support Network (TSN)

Patrick Nash has over 20 years' experience leading successful not-for-profit projects and organisations. Since joining Teacher Support Network as Chief Executive in 1998, the charity has transformed from a traditional benevolent fund into an international charity providing a range of innovative support services, such as Teacher Support Line and Teacher Support Online. In 2006, Patrick then launched a similar set of services for all adult, further and higher education staff – the College and University Support Network.

Having also founded the ground-breaking social enterprises Worklife Support and LTL Connect, Patrick has become a sought-after commentator and speaker on a range of education and wellbeing issues.
