The UK enjoys a good reputation in providing excellent higher education to international students and the number of Tier 4 students has increased by 35% in the year to June 2009.

But competition for international students is growing from the rest of the EU and Asia. Students expect an excellent experience in exchange for both their financial contribution and time investment. Institutions rely on international students for diversity a highly-skilled knowledge pool; as well as the financial revenue as an alternative funding stream, in a post-Browne environment.

This annual one-day conference will examine targeted marketing and student recruitment campaigns; technology to monitor applicants and their progress; as well as setting out strategies to maintain and exceed international students' expectations.
