ALWAYS LEARNING

John Hayes

‘Apprenticeships are not in the skills strategy, they are the skills strategy’

Geoff Russell

‘There will be no targets only Apprenticeships’

George Osborne

£300M to help fund training and work experience of which £180M is for additional support for apprenticeships

Youth unemployment is at the highest level since records began in 1992.

“Apprenticeships should be seen as a key route to national prosperity”

Rising tuition fees are making more young people think about the value of Apprenticeships

82% of employers felt that growth is at risk unless Britain invests sufficiently in practical skills

The advantages of workplace training need to be better understood by industry
